REPORT MANY DEAD IN SAN SALVADOR RESULT OF SEVERE EARTHQUAKE

Interior Is Stricken;
Nicaragua Feels
Violent Shock

SAN SALVADOR, May 21.—An unknown number of persons were reported killed in a violent earthquake which shook San Salvador today.

The casualties occurred in the interior of Salvador, according to reports, though some damage was done here. Communications at some points were interrupted.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 21.—This city was panic stricken at 4:30 a. m. today when an earthquake of unusual force shook all of Nicaragua.

Residents of Managua rushed into the streets, clad in night clothes, recalling the earthquake catastrophe of a year ago.

Early reports said that, despite the strength of the shock, property damage was not serious and no lives were lost.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Sharp earthquake shocks were registered on the Georgetown University seismograph at 5:15 and 5:20 a. m. E. S. T. today.

Georgetown seismologists calculated the earthquake to have occurred 1850 miles southwest of Washington. They believed it probably was off the coast of lower Mexico or Central America.

If on land, it was of sufficient intensity to cause "serious damage," they said.

POLICEMAN DIES IN FRATERNITY HOUSE FROM HEART ATTACK

Body Discovered After Dance; Coroner Is Investigating

COLUMBUS, O., May 21.—Coroner Edward E. Smith held a post mortem today over the body of Patrolman C. L. Keller, 31, who was found dead in a fraternity house here, shortly after midnight, following a dance.

The coroner said he would not give an official statement of the cause of death until after the post mortem.

Dr. M. D. Fitch, who said he was called to the fraternity about 12:30 a. m. unofficially gave the cause of death as a heart attack.

Students at the fraternity were questioned privately by Police Captain John Dunn.

Keller and Patrolman H. E. Barker had been hired by the fraternity on special duty to keep impostors from the dance, annual spring party of the fraternity.

George Wright, student in whose room the patrolman's body was found, said he was in the room when several men carried the patrolman in and laid him on a bed. The officer was dead when Dr. Fitch arrived.

Barker, second policeman, had gone home after viewing Keller. He said he did not think at the time that the patrolman's condition was serious.

"The party was very orderly," Barker reported. Captain Dunn said none of the students showed any sign of drinking but that a pint of liquor was found in one room.

ROME, May 21.—Capt. George Endres who made a trans-Atlantic flight from New York to Hungary in 1931, was killed with another Hungarian pilot named Bituny today when their plane crashed in landing at the Littorio airport.

The two aviators were enroute to Rome to attend the International Trans-Oceanic Fliers Congress, scheduled for Sunday.

VETERANS PREPARE TO START EASTWARD IN BONUS CAMPAIGN

Freight Train Will Bring Expedition To Cincinnati

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 21.—The Oregon delegation of 310 World War veterans enroute to Washington to demand action on the $2,400,000,000 veterans' bonus bill, prepared today to resume their eastward trek after a day and night of rest here.

Refreshed by a night of sleep in the five Wabash Railroad freight cars which they commandeered at Council Bluffs, Ia., and rode into St. Louis yesterday, the group was up early, eager to be on the way.

Plans announced by W. W. Waters, commander of the group, called for a march over the Mississippi River bridge into East St. Louis, Ill., where to board a Baltimore and Ohio freight train for Cincinnati, Ohio.

Railroad officials said the first freight train for the Ohio city was scheduled to leave East St. Louis at 12:30 p. m. today. They were non-committal over reports that the veterans would be allowed to use "empties" on the eastbound train.

The delegation, organized in Portland, Ore., started the eastward march with approximately 250 men determined to get congressional action on the bonus bill, or to "stay in Washington until the bonus is paid in 1941." Additional petitioners have been added en route, and Waters predicted that the group would number 1,000 by the time it reached the capital.

Police on guard at the freight yards enroute said the men had been orderly, and no trouble had developed over night. Strict military rule has been enforced by Waters in each of the eight cities where the veterans have camped.

CURTIS TO RESIST CHARGES

ATTORNEY NAMED TO STOP PROSECUTION
ON HOAX COMPLAINT

Norfolk Thinks All Of Story Not Told;
Friends Stand By

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 21.—John Hughes Curtis' fight to prevent prosecution for his cruel Lindbergh hoax began today with indications of a court battle that may bring repudiation of parts of his "confession" of that hoax.

The court fight was forecast by retention of an attorney to represent the Norfolk flier the first level move on his behalf since state police announced his negotiations "were a figment of his imagination."

Early stages of that fight will be directed by W. C. Pender, a prominent Norfolk attorney retained by relatives and friends of the boat builder, now residing in jail at Flemington. Curtis is held on a misdemeanor charge subjecting him to three years in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Pender, former law partner of Federal Judge Luther D. Way, left Norfolk last night. Curtis professed to know nothing of Pender's retention. Pender was expected to move at once to obtain release of Curtis on $10,000 bail.

A court fight to free Curtis, it was believed, would be based on necessity of proof that Curtis was not guilty of giving false information or hindering the hunt for a murder or kidnapping suspect. Or it would be based on extenuating circumstances.

These extenuating circumstances have been discussed here and at Norfolk.

Curtis might claim the confession was forced by state police. He might claim his early activity was forced by Norfolk rum-runners with whom he is known to have associated as a speed boat builder.

It might be claimed for him that early negotiations were legitimate as far as Curtis was concerned; that later he suspected, or learned he was dealing with fakers; that the publicity received urged him on with the resultant fabricated stories, and that finally a confession resulted through fear of reprisals by racketeers with whom he first dealt, if he "squealed" on them.

These theories are all based on the assumption that "Curtis has not told all," a belief rapidly gaining strength in Norfolk, and receiving some consideration here, although police say no basis for such a theory is known to them.

Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf has declared Curtis innocent of any part in the kidnapping and of any part in the extortion plot which extracted $50,000 in cash from Dr. John F. (Jafie) Condon.

However, police have not abandoned investigation of his activity and his story else they would not quarrel with Dean H. Dobson-Peacock in the latter's refusal to come here for questioning, even with expenses paid. The dean prefers to be questioned in Norfolk.

Colonel Lindbergh himself, who refused to file charges against Curtis, has given no indication of what prosecution if any he may desire. Schwarzkopf announced last night, Lindbergh did say he would not interfere with the police.

MUCH-MARRIED MATRIMONIAL AGENCY PATRON INVESTIGATED

ATHENS, O., May 21.—George N. Stevens, 53, patron of matrimonial agencies who is said by Michigan authorities to have "at least five wives" in that state, was under investigation here today.

Daughter of Governor Announces Betrothal

COLUMBUS, O., May 21.—Engagement of Miss Charlotte White, younger daughter of Governor George White, to Dr. Frank E. Hamilton, house physician at Grant Hospital, was announced at a breakfast at Marietta today.

The engagement culminated a hospital romance that flowered several months ago when Miss White, injured in an auto accident, was attended by Dr. Hamilton, who had charge of the emergency room.

Dr. Hamilton, Miss White and a nurse often played cards together while the governor's daughter was recovering from a bad cut in her forehead.

Dr. Hamilton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Hamilton. Hamilton is banker for the Equity Investment Co.

The engagement was announced at the Betsy Mills Club in Marietta. Two other girl friends of Miss White, Dorothea Hehle and Eleanor Ward, were announcing their engagement at the same breakfast.

No date has been set for Miss White's wedding.

Miss White is a member of the Pleasure Guild of Children's Hospital and has been prominent in Columbus social activities.

CALDWELL BANK BANDITS ARE IDENTIFIED; RECOVER MONEY

CALDWELL, O., May 21.—Just four days after a band of men terrorized officials and customers of the Noble County National Bank here, took $11,000 and raced away in motor cars, authorities today believed they had brought the group to justice. The suspects possessed $4,619 of the stolen money.

Two men arrested in Beaver Falls, Penn., and returned here, were pointed out by T. R. Hazard, president of the bank who was bound when the robbery occurred, as members of the bandit gang. They were Pete Hollick, 32, and Donald Walters, 22.

Meanwhile, word came from Dover, O., where all the suspects resided, that Harley Blacker was under arrest. Blacker was named by his colleagues, police said, as leader of the bank raid.

Hazard's identification of the men was born out by eleven other persons who were threatened with pistols during the holdup.

A fourth man and two women, also arrested in Beaver Falls and brought here, were not recognized by Hazard as among the robbers who entered the institution. They were Paul Chardish, 22; his wife, Margaret, and Irene Santone.

Sheriff Clayton McKee left his prisoners in charge of deputies here and hastened to Dover to bring Blacker back to face the charges.

The robbers were quoted as saying Blacker led the robbery, waited in a motor car while it was performed and met the others for "a split" on a highway outside Caldwell.

THREE CANDIDATES SPENT $110,000 IN NOMINATION DRIVE

Ingalls' Victory Cost
Nearly $65,000 Is Revealed

COLUMBUS, O., May 21.—The three leading candidates for the Republican nomination for governor and their campaign committees spent nearly $110,000 in the primary contest, according to their expense statements on file today with the secretary of state.

David S. Ingalls, Cleveland, the nominee for governor, reported that he and his committee spent $64,461.66. The cost of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown's campaign was $25,000, including his personal expenditures and those of his committee. Former Governor Myers Y. Cooper and his committee spent nearly $20,000.

The amount spent in the Ingalls campaign was the largest ever reported in a primary governorship campaign, according to records at the statehouse, although it was believed to have been exceeded and not reported as required by law in several campaigns.

Ingalls' personal expense statement showed $4,254.47. His state headquarters spent $6,501.24, most of which went for advertising. Contributors to his campaign fund were Mrs. Ingalls' family, the Harknesses, who contributed approximately $13,900. Mrs. Ingalls contributed $11,500 and Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Ingalls, the nominee's parents, contributed $6,500.

The Taft family, in Cincinnati, related to Ingalls, were the largest Hamilton County contributors, giving $3,500.

GEORGE BOCK HANGS SELF EARLY FRIDAY AT YELLOW SPRINGS

Neighbors Discover Body
Friday Night; Valuables Found

Coroner R. L. Haines, Jamestown, pronounced a verdict of suicide after the body of George Bock, 71, formerly a huckster, was found hanging from a beam in the hayloft of the barn in the rear of his home, 340 High St., in Yellow Springs, early Friday night.

Bock, whose wife died five years ago, lived alone in the house and discovery of the body was reported to have been made by neighbors who noticed his absence Friday and investigated. He was believed to have hanged himself Friday morning.

Coroner Haines and Sheriff John Baughn, summoned to Yellow Springs, found Bock had considerable money and securities on his person. He had $367 in cash and two Liberty bonds worth $500 and $500 in his pockets.

An examination of his effects disclosed other valuable securities in addition to about $12,000 worth of worthless stock, the coroner said.

John T. Hornaday, colored Miami Twp. justice of the peace, revealed to the coroner that during the last few years Bock had frequently threatened to end his life. He had made arrangements with the magistrate to inform his brother, John Bock, Dayton, R. R. 12, of his death.

The brother was named beneficiary in a will executed by Bock last January. Magistrate Hornaday, who drew up the will, said Bock had recently taken the will out of his custody. The document was found among his effects.

Opinion was advanced by the coroner that Bock was mentally unbalanced.

Bock is survived by five brothers: John Bock, near Dayton; Peter, Earlham, Ia.; Herman, of California; August and Henry of Miami, Fla. Two sisters preceded him in death.

The body was removed to the Littleton Brothers funeral parlors in Yellow Springs. Funeral services will be held at the home of his brother, John Bock, R. F. D. 12, Dayton, Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and burial will be made in Davis Cemetery, between Yellow Springs and Dayton.

FIRST WOMAN FLYER TO CROSS ATLANTIC REPEATS TRIP ALONE

Former Miss Earhart Brings Plane Down Near Londonderry After Hazardous Trip; Plane
Was Crippled During Flight

LONDON, May 21.—Amelia Earhart Putnam today became the first of her sex to make a solo flight of the Atlantic when she put her red monoplane down in a pasture near Londonderry, Ireland, after an adventurous flight from Harbour Grace, N. F.

By telephone from Londonderry, a city on the northern tip of Ireland and about fifty miles in from the coast line, she said:

"I had to land in a pasture outside of Londonderry. I am not hurt and I think the plane is all right."

She revealed the hazards of the long-trans-Atlantic venture which she had come through, five years to the day after Col. Charles A. Lindbergh completed his successful flight to Paris.

For about ten hours she flew with the exhaust manifold of her engine burned out, she said. Added to her dangers were rain and a little fog.

According to the London Evening Standard, the first person to greet Mrs. Putnam was the owner of the pasture in which she landed.

The Standard quoted Mrs. Putnam as saying she would ask her husband, George Palmer in New York, what to do next.

"I think I may come to London," she said, "but I have only my flying suit with me and not much money."

As the red monoplane roared out of the storm over Ireland, she noticed that her gasoline gauge was broken, "probably having been battered by the storm through which I had flown. There was beginning to be a gasoline leakage and I decided to land," she said.

The tall American woman, who was a passenger on one trans-Atlantic flight, appeared perfectly composed after one of the most gruelling flying tests any woman ever concluded. Almost nonchalantly yesterday she received the news at Harbour Grace, N. F., that weather forecasts were propitious for the attempt. She motored from a hotel to the long 2,000 foot runway at the Newfoundland city, gave a terse statement of her plans, climbed into the red Lockheed monoplane, waved a farewell and was away.

She had been especially anxious to go yesterday. It was just five years to the day from the time that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, then a comparative unknown, had sent his Ryan monoplane away from Roosevelt Field for a thirty-three and one-half hour flight to Paris.

From the moment the red monoplane of Mrs. Putnam cleared the waters off Newfoundland there was no report of the adventurous woman flyer. She had told friends they would hear from her in eighteen hours. Through the night her plane roared steadily onward, completely out of vision of the many steamers dotting the great circle route which she had planned to fly. Before leaving she had warned this might be true, as she planned to go to an altitude of 8,000 feet to make flying safer.

LONDONDERRY, Ireland, May 21.—Amelia Earhart Putnam was forced to land at Culmore, near Londonderry, today completing the first solo flight of a woman aviator across the Atlantic.

Developed a leakage that prevented her continuing her flight to Paris, was the reason she had to land in a pasture. She was unhurt and the airplane not badly damaged.

Her immediate future plans awaited a trans-Atlantic conversation she planned to have with her husband, George Palmer Putnam, in New York.

The first thought Mrs. Putnam had after landing was for her friends at home who might have concern as to her safety. She motored here and went directly to the post office to send messages that she had landed safely.

TARIFF COALITION TAKES SADDLE; TAX BILL NOW ASSURED

Democrats In Bitter
Battle As Duties
Are Voted

WASHINGTON, May 21.—With the tariff coalition definitely in the saddle, senate leaders today looked for comparatively clear going for the $1,000,000,000 tax bill.

A two-day deadlock on tariffs was broken last night when the senate adopted import duties on oil and coal by roll calls of 43 to 37 and 39 to 34. The senate agreed to meet early today—to go ahead with the lumber, copper and rubber tariffs.

These were expected to win, as the various tariff-seeking groups have agreed to support each other's items.

The tariff victory was accomplished at the expense of extremely bitter dissension among Democrats. It virtually eliminated the tariff as a party campaign issue. Eighteen Democrats deserted their party's traditional free-trade policy and voted for the oil tariff; twenty Democrats opposed it.

Irrepressible Huey Long of Louisiana was the sharpest thorn in the side of anti-tariff Democrats. And he in turn received the sharpest dressing down in the session, at the hands of Senator George Democrat, Georgia.

Breaking of the tariff deadlock encouraged Republican leaders to predict that the tax bill could be sent to conference with the house next Thursday. They regarded that as the deadline for passage, if congress is to adjourn before the national convention.

There still remained the possibility that Senator Tydings, Dem., Md., might make good his threat to force consideration of 500 amendments in retaliation for approval of the oil tariff. Tydings introduced the first of these amendments last night. The leaders believed Tydings would not go through with his plan because of the responsibility he would have to bear for delaying the tax bill.

Senator Norris, Rep., Nebraska, as he promised, introduced an amendment to establish the export debit system of farm relief. He was expected to press this to a vote.

Huey Long infuriated the anti-tariff Democrats by reading the record of their votes in favor of items in the Hawley-Smoot tariff act to protect products of their own states. Coming to George, he noted the Georgia senator voted for a vegetable oil tariff.

"It's all right for the Georgia senator to vote for oil from his own state, but when it comes to another kind of oil produced in some other states, then he denounced a tariff, the Louisiana declared, George at once turned on Long. He said he had voted for agricultural tariffs whether for his own state or others, but "never traded a vote in this body for a single item for my state."

George said he was "indifferent to buffoonery and clownishness," and he accused Long of trying to embarrass him "without the slightest sense of sensibility—I almost said of decency."

WARNER UNDER FIRE IN PROBE OF STOCK

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Charges of "under cover stock operations" in his own corporation accompanied by newspaper propaganda designed to aid in manipulation of the market, were made today against Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Bros. Inc. before the senate banking and currency committee.

William A. Gray, committee counsel, made the charge. Warner had been sworn as the day's first witness and had testified that stocks of the corporation had been increased from 550,000 shares to 7,500,000 three years after the organization's incorporation in 1925.

Gray said he had been instructed by officers of the corporation to investigate the selling of their own stock.

"Mr. Warner sold his own stock while the newspapers were boosting it and then when the stocks went down he bought it back to make a profit of $9,251,454.50," Gray added.

OLD INDICTMENT IS NOLLED; FRALEY TO RETURN TO PRISON

An indictment charging Charles Fraley, 47, former resident of Ross Twp., eastern Greene County, with shooting with intent to kill, was nolledd Friday by Prosecuting Attorney Marcus McCallister.

Fraley will be returned to the London prison farm, from where he is expected to be paroled shortly. He was eligible for parole May 14, but was held there on a capias issued in Greene County, and was brought here last Monday by Sheriff John Baughn and Chief Deputy Walton Spahr to answer the old charge.

Had Fraley been prosecuted here on the two-year-old shooting charge his parole from the prison farm would have been revoked, authorities say.

Fraley was indicted here in the fall of 1929 for shooting John Corrigan. He was said to have called Corrigan to the fence in front of the latter's farm home in Ross Twp. He asked Corrigan for a drink and when he was refused, was reported to have fired two shotgun charges into Corrigan's body. Fraley escaped and was not apprehended by Greene County authorities. He was later sentenced to the penitentiary from Fayette County for burglary and larceny.

Jacob and Esau Reconciled

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Genesis 32, 33, especially 33:1-11.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell
And Alfred J. Buescher

After Jacob came to the home of his uncle, Laban, he fell in love with Rachel, his cousin, and married her. God blessed him and made him rich in flocks and herds and gave him eleven sons in the land of his exile.

But Jacob became homesick for his old home and began to plan his return. However, he feared to meet Esau and planned to win his favor by sending ahead great flocks as gifts to please his brother.

Then he spent the night in prayer to God, and God taught Jacob to depend less upon himself and more upon God and changed his name from Jacob, meaning "cheater", to Israel, meaning "Prince of God".

After this vision of the night Jacob went to meet Esau and found him very friendly, for God had prepared Esau's heart to forgive his brother, and they met in peace. But it was God's grace rather than Jacob's scheming that brought this meeting.

FINANCIAL AID FOR FREE EMPLOYMENT BUREAU IS SOUGHT

Retail Merchants Ask Public To Share Expense

An appeal to the public to donate funds to keep the free employment bureau in operation here, is being broadcast by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, which founded and financed the bureau so far, but now finds it a greater financial problem than it can bear.

Although the bureau has been operated at unusually small cost since its institution February 8, the association's funds are now exhausted and it hopes the general public will come to its aid in order to sustain what it believes to be a worthy enterprise.

The bureau is functioning as a clearing house for labor between men and women job applicants and contractors, employers or householders needing labor of any kind. In this capacity it has obtained jobs for men and women which has given them a total income of approximately $3,000, since it was started and has many more it hopes to place in public works and other jobs during the summer, if it is kept in operation.

The appeal of the Retail Merchants Association for funds, directed to this paper, follows:

The Xenia Retail Merchants Association is appealing to business and professional men and women and individuals all over Greene County to help finance continuance of the free employment bureau established here by the association at the suggestion of Foody Post, American Legion.

The bureau was established to assist in obtaining jobs for Xenia and Greene County men on construction work that is being done and will be done during the year. Now, although it has functioned successfully for several weeks, the financial burden of maintaining the bureau has become too great for the association and, believing that the purpose is worthy, merchants are presenting their problem to the general public with the hope of obtaining funds to keep the bureau in operation.

We have been assured of cooperation from contractors on work at the O. S. and S. O. Home and on highway work and they may have. The bureau insists on giving local labor preference in all work. The bureau operates free to men seeking positions and to contractors wanting labor, and there are now 761 men and women registered for all kinds of work. The most needy and deserving applicants receive first consideration although when work calls for a particular class of trade, the most suitable applicants are sent.

Nobody profits from operation of the bureau except the jobless who find work. It has been operated from Retail Merchants Association funds and contributions from the American Legion and, as it has been in operation since February 8, its funds are now exhausted. Even Mrs. H. R. Wirthlin, who is providing excellent service as secretary, receives almost nothing for time and efforts. Since February 8 it has cost $143.80 to operate the bureau. In that time the bureau has placed men and women in jobs from which they have received $3,000 in wages.

We consider that a good investment and one worthy of the attention of the public. In fact many applicants who have obtained jobs have volunteered to give part of the money they make to help continue the bureau.

Through this appeal to the general public we are hoping to obtain sufficient funds to guarantee the continued operation of the bureau. If persons will bring or mail their donation to the free employment bureau or to the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, we guarantee every cent of it will be used to find work for Greene County men and women who need it badly.

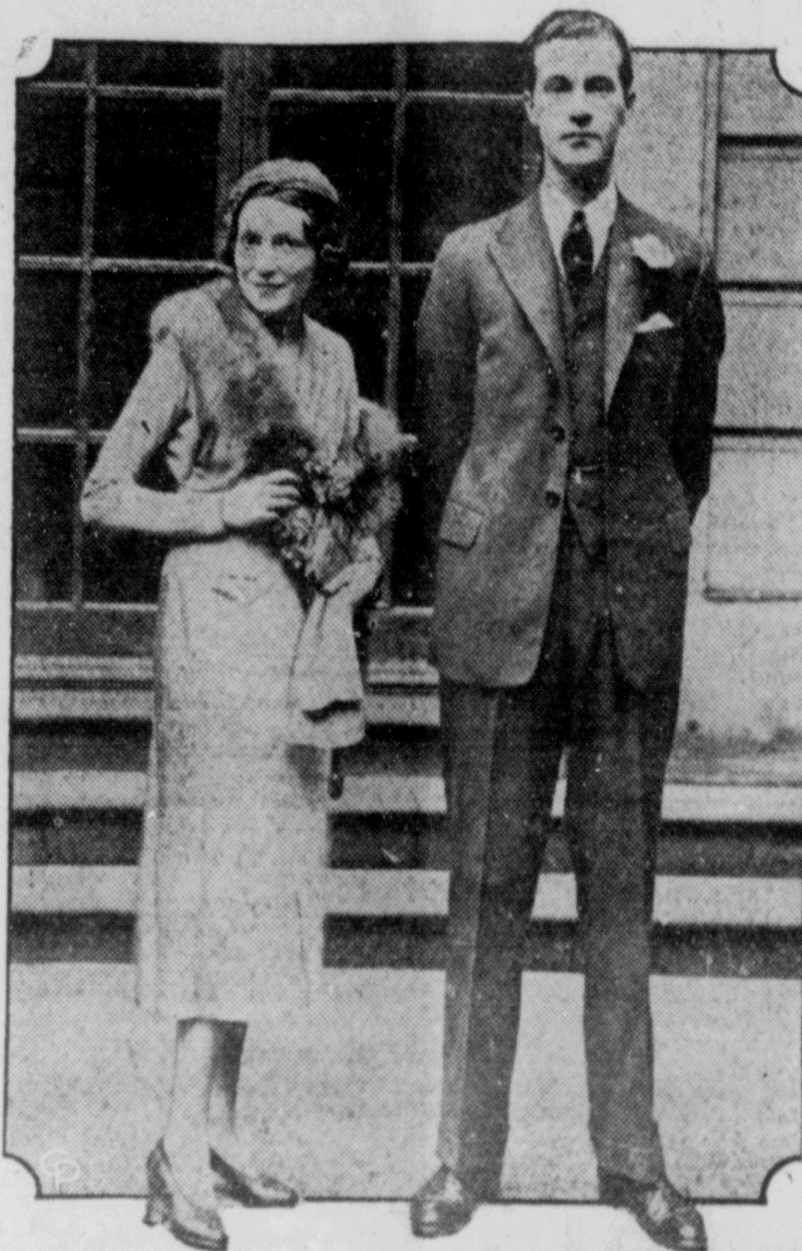

We will greatly appreciate the publication of this appeal in order to get our problem before the public.

Very truly yours,
The Xenia Retail Merchants Assn.
W. A. King Jr., secretary.

WHY ADELE ASTAIRE FORGOT STAGE

Adele Astaire, or rather Lady Cavendish, one of the premier dancers of the American musical comedy stage, is shown with her titled husband, Lord Charles Cavendish, youngest son of the Duke of Devonshire. They are leaving the private chapel of Chatsworth house, Edensor, England, following the ceremony.

true. Never a strong or robust girl Miss Lyons more frequently than otherwise forced herself to trying efforts in behalf of those even less fortunate than she, and we cannot let slip this opportunity of paying tribute to this heroic, patriotic and lovely girl.

"For long years she worked with the Red Cross society in Lawrence County with meagre pay and when entirely unable to do the work but with rare courage, with genuine sympathy and with zeal and understanding, she remained at her tasks long after others of us were around our comfortable firesides. She visited the sick, the distressed and incompetent, she fed the hungry, nursed men, women and children, clothed them, warmed them and if there is a reward for those of this earth, Emma Lyons is certain to be the first in line of the deserving. What a heritage she leaves an unthinking world."

BELLBROOK

The newly organized local softball aggregation "snatched as a brand from the burning" their first game of the season on last Tuesday evening when they unlimbered their batteries and defeated the Spring Valley outfit in the last stage of the game when it seemed almost certain they were due for the count. "The valley boys" by good hitting had piled up a five-run lead which was overcome by the locals tying the score in the eighth, and by a number of clean hits in the last half of the ninth, thus finishing the game in their favor by a score of 9 to 8. There will be a game between the home team and Waynesville on the local diamond next Wednesday evening. The local boys will be glad to play good teams in any of the neighboring towns. The regular hard ball team will play their first game of the season at Centerville on next Saturday afternoon. The present intention of the manager is to play Saturday ball at home and Sunday games abroad. The local boys say they will play any or all good teams in any of the adjoining counties. For games, address Robert Edwards, Bellbrook, O.

Miss Georgia McAfee, Lima, president of the Ohio State Library Association, will be one of the speakers at a district meeting of the state library association at the First Reformed Church here Wednesday, it is announced by Miss Katharine Shorey, Greene County district librarian, who is chairman of arrangements for the meeting.

The morning session will open at 10 o'clock and will be devoted to "Books". The discussion will be divided into three parts and the first part, "That Nice Young Couple", on books for adults, will be discussed by Miss Gentiliska Winterrowd, librarian at the Springfield Public Library. Miss Stein, head of the high school department of the Dayton Public Library, will discuss the second part, "Seventeen", on books for young people. The discussion, "When We Were Very Young", on books for children, will be led by Miss Julia Carter, in charge of the children's department of the Cincinnati Public Library.

Luncheon will be served at the church and persons wishing to attend are asked to make reservations with Miss Shorey. "This Financial Crisis" will be the subject of the afternoon program, opening at 2 o'clock. Miss McAfee, state librarian, will discuss "The Law, As It Is and As It Should Be", in which she will explain how the new tax law has affected the library. Discussions of how the financial crisis has affected the library will be given from three different viewpoints. A trustee from the Cincinnati Public Library will discuss it from the trustee's standpoint; Paul North Rice, Dayton, will discuss it from the administrator's view and Miss Elizabeth Pangmeyer, head of one of the Cincinnati branch libraries, will discuss it from the public's viewpoint.

Miss Mildred W. Sandoe, Mansfield, former librarian here, and chairman of the state library extension committee, will be here for the meeting.

Approximately seventy-five representatives from sixty-two libraries in southwestern Ohio will attend the meeting. All sessions of the meeting are open to the public.

IRONTON TRIBUNE PAYS TRIBUTE TO MISS EMMA LYONS

The Ironton Tribune took editorial cognizance of the recent death of Miss Emma Lyons, former Red Cross chapter secretary here, paying a tribute to her memory in an editorial entitled "A Ministering Angel".

It follows: "The Tribune notes with genuine grief and regret the death of Miss Emma Lyons, for many years a Red Cross worker in Lawrence County. As one admirer aptly states, 'if every one whom she has helped and comforted, sent but a single flower to her bier, she would be completely buried', and this is

WHO'S TO BLAME

How often does a motorist have to prove himself a menace to public safety before being deprived of the power to endanger the lives of others?

The question is pertinent in view of a recent tragic happening in an eastern state. The twenty-two-year-old driver of one of two colliding automobiles has behind him a long record of highway traffic violations, his license having been twice revoked in four years. In the present case, in which the two occupants of the other vehicle were killed, a passenger in the car driven by the young man asserts he had been pushing the machine along at sixty-five miles an hour until urged to slow down, and officials report that it was his car that was on the wrong side of the traffic lane.

In the sad circumstances it may remain impossible to adjudge where all the fault lay, but the Registrar of Motor Vehicles is quoted as saying that so long as he is in office this particular license will be permanently revoked. The decision will seem to many a belated one.

The majority of automobile drivers are law-abiding. Too many are not.

Reading the account of the disaster in question many will have asked themselves, "Where does the ultimate responsibility for it lie? With the driver of unenviable record or with the State that set him free to jeopardize public safety after unmistakable exhibitions or reckless irresponsibility?"

JAPANESE POLITICS

The political situation in Japan becomes clearer when one remembers that Cabinets in that Country may be constructed without regard to the partisan complexion of the Diet. The Emperor appoints the ministers of state and they are responsible only to him. They meet and discuss affairs of state without having the collective responsibility of a Cabinet in say, Great Britain.

The army and navy in Japan, whose representatives in the Cabinet are high officers of the two arms, are distinct from the Civil Government. They approach the Emperor directly and take their orders from him. This arrangement was a necessary compromise in effecting the transition of Japan from the Samurai era to modernism. The result of it has been, as frequent events have shown, to cause wide discrepancies in National politics at home and abroad.

At the moment the militarists are bitterly resentful of the Government's decision to withdraw from Shanghai under circumstances which they regard as discreditable to their Country. They demand a policy of "blood and iron." What the first fruits of their attacks on the Government will be is not known even in Japan. What seems ultimately inevitable is that this conflict between civil liberalism and military reactionism, which is the weakest joint in Japan's constitutional armor, will have to come to a showdown. One party will have to overcome the other if Japan is ever to be long at peace with itself and the rest of the world.

"DISTORTED" IS RIGHT

John Hughes Curtis says that he was suffering from a "distorted mind" when he duped Col. Lindbergh into believing that he was in contact with the kidnapers of the latter's child. That in a sense undoubtedly is true. Only a mind distorted by the expectation of personal advantage, financial or other, would have set out so deliberately to capitalize the distraction of grief stricken parents. But when a man's mind remains clear and ingenious enough to fabricate an intricate story of contacts and sustain interest in it for weeks, that sort of distortion is a dangerous thing to be at large.

It is rumored that Curtis may have thought of suicide because he is despondent over the disgrace he has brought, and the grief he has inflicted. Is he despondent because he did a hideous thing or because he got caught at it? The man has confessed to a crime second only to that from which he hoped and schemed to profit. The enormity of his particular form of duplicity should be impressed upon him by a vigorous application of all available legal penalties. Others may thereby be discouraged from attempting to make kidnaping the basis of such side rackets.

WITHHOLD MONEY

A lonely young husband and wife in New Jersey, confronted with the task of putting away a roomful of toys, have been swamped with messages. From humblest workers to rulers, thousands upon thousands have sent their messages of sympathy.

But are the citizens of America going to stop with mere sympathy? If there be genuine fellow-feeling, let it be translated into effective efforts to prevent recurrence of such things. Let every American do what he can to discourage crime.

One of the most obvious ways is to stop financing crime. Everyone who pays tribute to rackets, gambling, vice bootlegging helps to foster conditions which produce things like the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Money is the life-blood of crime. Without it the gang cannot survive. Are the people really aroused? Are they determined to free home and government from the clutch of crime? Then let them at least make a start. Let them at once withhold from crime any financial returns.

FAST — AT TIMES

The Senate can work fast in an emergency—if the emergency happens to affect the political fortunes of its members directly enough. Suddenly faced with the possibility of the discontinuance of the Congressional Record, which circulates their delivered and undelivered speeches for the enlightenment of the folks back home, Senators voted Saturday, without discussion and "without a murmur," an appropriation of $500,000 to continue the Congressional Record and other Congressional printing!

The Record is a useful publication, which should not be discontinued, although "extensions of remarks" and a lot of other junk with which it is cluttered up, should be excluded from it. Thus would its cost to the public be reduced. The gentlemen who voted so promptly to continue this means of carrying their views to their constituents at public expense appear to have overlooked that point entirely.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK. — Off the Beaten Track of Broadway: Splashed by a passing cab, I dropped into a dingy, hole-in-the-wall dry cleaning place of the Tompkins Square district the other day, to have an immense splotch removed from my trousers (eg. This is a neighborhood of polyglot complexion, Russians, Italians, Syrians, Greeks crowd one another).

The proprietor looked like Moses in the flesh. His beard had been trimmed. I just enough to allow him vision for a bit. There was no booth for the while-you-wait trade. He beckoned me to turn over the defaced garment motioning at the same time toward a stool in full view of the door.

Somewhat uneasily I complied. Immediately a youth of about 20, tall, dark and rakishly mustachioed, dashed into the shop and made for the pressing machine. There was a hiss of steam as the young man dextrously manipulated a bright speckled tie into the padded jaws. Soon, satisfied with his neckwear, he adjusted it to his throat and departed, with a swagger.

Moses did not look up.

"No pay?" I asked.

"No pay," he murmured glumly. "Never no pay!"

"You get many like that?"

"All day long day come," Moses interrupted his scrubbing with what I presumed was gasoline. "All day dey do dot. And for what do I get out of it? Nudding! Here used to be a good neighborhood, but you do wrong to say no to dese fellows, even when neighborhood not so good."

Thus, cryptically, he retired once more into his beard, as an elderly man strolled in and made for the pressing machine a wad of unironed handkerchiefs in his fist.

WRITERS IN GREASEPAINT

There is one play on Broadway which can be said truly to be a dramatist's evening.

Audiences with acute dramatic eyes and memories feel as if they're sitting in on a meeting of the Dramatists' Guild when they view "Riddle Me This." John Golden's current horse-laugh at the detective melodrama.

Here's a sample cross-section of the cast:

Thomas Mitchell, the star, helped write "Clouds With Showers" and "Nightstick." Dan Jarrett, author of scores of vaudeville skits and the play, "Salt Water," of a few seasons back, plays a gangster, Chas. Richmond, whose name is also on the program, has concocted two Broadway plays, two movies and piles of skits.

And, of course, there's John Golden, himself the producer.

SENTENCED FOR LIFE

LINDBERGH KIDNAPING COMMITTED FOR RANSOM, FEDERAL SLEUTHS BELIEVE

WASHINGTON.—Federal sleuths are drawing heavily upon the government's sources of scientific information in their search for light on the Lindbergh kidnaping.

The word "kidnaping" rather than murder is used advisedly; Uncle Sam's investigators are not entirely convinced that the baby was deliberately killed. Not, indeed, that the crime would be regarded as any the less outrageous, even though it should prove that the child's death was no part of the plan of those who stole him. However, the distinction does weigh with those engaged in the attempt to fix guilt upon its perpetrator, or perpetrators, as a factor in the shaping of their inquiry.

The government quest, at any rate, has a certain peculiar interest in that it is being directed along lines considerably different from those ordinarily followed by police in their efforts to unravel such mysteries.

Local medical testimony indicated that the Lindbergh infant was slain only a very short time after he was taken from his crib in the flying colonel's Soudland home. This would seem to dispose of the theory that desire for a reward was the kidnaping's motive. Officials of the United States public health service insist, however, that, after a lapse of from 60 to 70 days, the date of the child's death could not possibly be determined within a week or ten days. On the supposition that he remained alive for so long a period in his abductors' hands, room still would remain open for serious consideration of the hypothesis that the criminals' original object was the extortion of money from their captive's parents.

The assumption of New Jersey authorities that the baby was killed by a blow on the head also is referred to by federal health service experts as a conclusion which it appears to them impossible to arrive at with absolute certainty.

As pointed out by one of these specialists, who hesitated to be quoted by name in connection with the case: "The child may, of course, have died from the effects of the skull fracture described by the coroner who conducted the autopsy. On the other hand, the fracture could have occurred after death, as, illustratively, by the tossing of the body from a swiftly moving automobile."

A fracture inflicted before death would have been attended by an internal hemorrhage, not a post-mortem fracture, but the evidence necessary to settle this question must inevitably have been destroyed by decomposition, and any account to the contrary should be received with deep skepticism.

Inssofar, then, as the result of the conclusion of the government detectives is concerned, the inclination unmistakably is to give the weight of probability, by about 2 to 1, to the theory that the kidnaping's motive was mercenary, rather than to attribute it to enmity to Colonel Lindbergh or to account for it as the act of an irresponsible maniac.

Viewed as having been committed for ransom, it is regarded as having been a normal crime, despite its atrocity. The type of lunatic likely to be inspired to such a murder (and if the motive was hatred of the colonel, alienists are agreed that it could only be classed as an insane hatred) is spoken of by government psychiatrists as at least very rare.

As between what can be termed a natural crime and an unnatural

Ever Eat a Ripe Olive?

Three Anonymous Letters Keep Away From "Frank People"

I remember the time I first ate olives. . . Just a small boy pulling a wagon along a country road. There just over the fence, were beautiful silver-gray trees with little purple fruits on them. They drew me over the fence and up I shinned. Greedy little kid, I filled all my pockets with the pretty things and shinned down again. . . Put three in my mouth and bit through the purple skin into the flesh of the fruit. Made a terrible face, gagged, choked, spit them out again. . . And wondered for years how anybody could possibly like an olive. Wondered until I learned that it's a long process, converting an olive into a pleasant and edible food. . . And sometimes when I see a gruff and grumpy fellow with a look on his face that argues he's just been eating ripe olives, I remember that terrible experience of mine, and I know he can't be half as grumpy as he looks. Nobody could be. . . Life will do to him what men do to olives.

I've been invited to a Sunday dinner in a New Hampshire home and the invitation said that they have blueberry pie in that house every Sunday of the year. . . Are blueberry pies as good as they sound in fiction and in invitations? Some day we'll all go to New Hampshire and have blueberry pie—and heaven will not be heaven for New Englanders unless they can have it every day.

Three anonymous letters came to me last week. . . They were friendly, generous, kind. The sort that make you choke a bit and feel ashamed. . . It's odd, but there ARE people in this land who do unselfish things and wish to be unknown.

I wrote about our cat and how he allowed a white rat to come right up and sniff his whiskers and didn't do a thing about it. . . Since then I've been asked many times if it was "really true," that our cat did that. . . Yes, it's true. I wouldn't say that our cat LOVES that rat, but he does tolerate the little white fellow. He knows that we have said "Paws off," and he obeys, but he acts as if he thought it was a funny state of affairs.

Milk for Children

This suggested menu from the home economics bureau of the U. S. departments of agriculture uses several foods rich in calcium, including some milk and cheese, to bring the calcium requirements of the family up to the standard for health.

When children come home from school tired, get them to sit down for a little while and slowly drink a glass of milk and eat two or three graham crackers, a slice of bread and butter, or perhaps a ginger snap or other molasses cookie.

Make covers for your favorite cook books with checked oilcloth that matches your gingham kitchen curtains or matches the oilcloth on your table. These are very attractive and keep your books free from the soil they generally collect, says an enterprising housewife. If there is any oilcloth left over, cover your scouring powder can with it. Make the cover fit quite snug and fasten with about three snaps so it may be removed and put on your new can of cleanser.

Rubbing a teaspoon of sugar with the salt and pepper into a steak will improve the flavor. The sugar caramelizes on the outside, holding in the juices and giving the meat added nutritional value.

Shoe Dye Poison Not Serious

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Shoe dye poisoning may be a mystery as to the cause when it occurs, but it leaves no doubt that something has happened. It nearly scares the victim and every one who sees him to death.

Including the doctor, I have described it before and I recently had a letter from a physician of wide experience who said that on reading an account of such a case which I had written, the mystery of a case of shoe dye poisoning was solved.

The victim of shoe dye poisoning turns blue—a dirty, sticky looking blue, that certainly is alarming. The queer thing is that he feels no bad effects, and when some member of the household sees him and screams, "What is the matter?" he answers, "Nothing—what are you talking about?" Then he is told to go look at himself in the mirror and when he does, he really gets sick, sure enough.

Because what he sees looks more like a corpse than a living man. His complexion is like that which is seen under a mercury vapor lamp used in small photographic galleries.

Fortunately, the experience never has any serious consequences and everyone can afford to joke about it afterwards.

The cause is the blue-black dye used to turn tan shoes into black shoes. If the shoes are worn too soon after the process the heat of the foot volatilizes the dye and it is absorbed into the blood through the skin of the foot. In the blood it does not cause any damage to the blood cells, nor indeed any damage to anything. That is why the victim feels perfectly all right.

But the blue color tinges the skin and gives the ghastly appearance of impending death to the countenance.

The experience has even been reported in babies. In one case the baby inherited a pair of shoes from an older brother. They were a little scuffed so the mother thought she would freshen them up by dyeing them black. She did and put them on the baby's feet before the dye was dry. The poor baby began to turn blue and the mother thought it was dying. The shoes were taken off and in a few hours the baby's color was normal.

The blue color disappears in all cases in about three days. But if the shoes are put back on it often the result is a series of attacks of going to bed and getting better, and getting up and putting the shoes on and getting worse, and going back to bed, for the poor patient. If the dyed shoes are not worn for a week or two after the dyeing process, nothing of this sort occurs.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

Mrs. M. H.: "What is the diet for high blood pressure?"

Answer: There is no agreement about the proper diet for high blood pressure. The so-called basic diet is probably more likely to influence the condition than any other. It is as follows: Alkali-producing foods to be encouraged: almonds, apples, asparagus, bananas, dried beans, dried lima beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, chestnuts, dried currants, lemons, lettuce, cow's milk, muskmelon, oranges, peaches, dried peas, potatoes, radishes, raisins and turnips. Acid-producing foods to be avoided: white bread, whole wheat bread, dried sweet corn, crackers, cranberries, eggs, egg white, egg yolk, fish, haddock, pike, lean beef, chicken meat, frog meat, lean pork, rabbit, veal, oysters, oatmeal, peanuts, prunes, plums and rice.

Silence Hurts Helen

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

What is harder to bear than absolute silence from a loved one?

I often wonder whether young men and women—but more especially men, as they are often the offenders—ever come to a realization of what it means to wife and mother when they fail to write.

Mothers and wives go through all sorts of imaginary horrors when that letter they should have had fails to materialize. Sweethearts are hurt and humiliated in the same way.

A letter, or even a brief note, costs little in time, energy and money. Why not send them often? There surely are enough unescapable griefs to bear without making your loved ones suffer for those that could be avoided.

PUZZLED HELEN: I am sorry I have not answered your letter before. The puzzle is to answer the ones most needing an answer. I think there is very little excuse for your fiancé's treatment of you. He doubtless is worried over the loss of his job and his inability to get another. But that does not excuse his silence toward the girl he has asked to be his wife.

You have done everything you could to show your love and loyalty—written him sympathetic letters, tried to get him a job. Now I should write him, if I were you, and tell him that unless he answers your letter and intimates in some way that he still loves you and wants you to continue the engagement, that you will consider it broken.

He has put you in a most embarrassing and humiliating position by his silence and if you hear nothing further from him after you send such a letter, simply send back the ring. You can, of course, tell him that you are still ready to stand by him until times are better if he can assure you that his feeling for you is unchanged.

If you break your engagement, you may be without attention from young men for a time, but have faith that later, when it is known you are free, you again will be sought.

UNDECIDED: I think you can't do better than take the advice No. 2 boy friend has given you. Wait until the first boy comes to see you and see what your reaction to him is.

Then if you still love No. 2 better, tell No. 1 so and offer to give back the things he has given you. It is the only honest thing to do. It wouldn't be fair to No. 1 to marry him without telling him about this other young man whom you love so much better. I should think he would rather marry you than to do so under those circumstances.

It is no disgrace for a man to be without a job for any length of time in these hard times, but if No. 1 is the type that never would have a steady job no matter what the circumstances you would not be happy with him even if there were no No. 2.

It is never honorable or sporting for a girl to deliberately take away another girl's boy friend, but I don't think even the fact that you did so should influence you in your choice of a husband.

Be Wary Of Charlatans

By GLADYS GLAD

As I told you in my last article, there are two main factors upon which the success of a nose-resaping operation depends. The first is the plastic surgeon who is employed. And the second is yourself.

Let us give the primary factor first consideration. Plastic surgery has, in recent years, reached a place of importance as an exact science, and as such, therefore, attracted to itself a number of quacks and charlatans. And such individuals must be strictly guarded against. For the damage that an unskilled and inexperienced surgeon can do sometimes is actually pitiful. If an individual cannot obtain the services of a thoroughly reliable and expert surgeon, it would be far better for her to endure the nose that nature bestowed upon her, or that disease or accident disfigured, than to chance a worse facial deformity by entrusting herself to a surgeon of questionable ability.

As with any operation, of course, there is some risk of infection, too. And an experienced surgeon certainly is essential if this danger is to be avoided. For a trained surgeon knows the proper disinfecting methods to use, and employs them carefully.

You might say, then, "How can the success of a nose-resaping operation possibly depend upon myself?" But that's a mighty question to answer. You're the one who engages the surgeon aren't you? And therefore it's up to you to see that you have only a thoroughly skilled individual do the work. Any element of risk is greatly minimized when a man of excellent reputation is engaged, don't forget. And so it's your place to see that you do right by yourself by engaging only a surgeon who will do right by you.

Then too, there's after-care that is essential. And that's where you come in again. There are dressings to be worn—for from one to three weeks, usually, depending upon the nature of the operation. And it's up to you to stay under your surgeon's care, to follow his instructions implicitly until the final results have been achieved.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Superfluous Hair

E. L. C.: If you bleach the hair on your upper lip with a mixture of two teaspoons of peroxide and one-half a teaspoon of household ammonia, it should be noticeable. Permanent removal can be effected by expert use of the electric needle.

Sage Tea

Jackie: Before the sage tea is used, the hair should be shampooed and dried. Then a deep solution of the tea should be brushed through the hair. The hair should not be rinsed after the tea is applied.

Bleach

Mrs. T. A.: Peroxide may indeed be used to bleach freckles on the face and arms. It should be permitted to dry on the skin and then cold cream should be applied to counteract any drying effects.

Camphor acid is obtained by the oxidation of camphor with nitric acid.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Players on the field and fans in the grandstands may now talk back and forth as much as they like in the National League ball parks without breaching a new rule which had prohibited such intimacy and provided a $5 fine for violations.

So unpopular was the rule with the public, press and the players themselves, that it has been rescinded.

The massing of from 300 to 400 musicians, playing under one director, will be an attraction at Sunday's game at Cincinnati between the Reds and the league-leading Cubs. They will be members of the various Cincinnati high school bands each with a conductor and led by Henry Fillmore, famous radio director, assisted by his famous radio dog, "Mike." The music-makers will unitedly play four selections from 2:30 to 3 o'clock, and the volume of noise produced should enable this department to stay at home Sunday and listen without going all the way down to Redland Field.

Chick Hafee, who is blasting out hits with as much frequency for the Reds as he once did for the Cards, complains about the unfairness of baseball rules as concerns the recognition given outfielders for fielding. "Why is it," Chick asks, "that outfielders are given an error in the averages when they mishandle a ground ball, when they are not credited with an assist after fielding a ground ball perfectly?"

There is a certain amount of common sense to Chick's line of reasoning, and yet it can't be done. Outfielders are just in a tough spot, that's all.

Infielders get an assist when they actually assist in making a putout. Outfielders are too far away to throw out batters at first base, though they frequently get credited with assists on double plays or cutting down runners at other bases. The idea is to give safe hits to the outfield if it is up to an outfielder to retrieve the ball, and an outfielder is the logical player. But if they fumble balls hit on the ground, and runners advance by reason of this fact, the scorer must blame somebody for the error and the poor outfielder is the goat.

The American football League is just one, big happy family and none of the four competing teams like to beat each other. Hence they play the games and everybody concerned is satisfied. They take the attitude, apparently, that if they can't win, neither will they lose or it may be that if they can't lose, they don't want to win. With the season only four weeks old, three of the eight games played in this league have resulted in tie scores.

MT. TABOR FLYERS TIE WITH XENIANS

Darkness called a halt to an exciting football game between the Mt. Tabor Flyers and the Luttrell team of Xenia with the score tied at 6 to 6 after nine innings of play Friday night on the Mt. Tabor diamond.

Playing their first home game this season, the Flyers trailed until the last half of the ninth when a three-run rally squared the count.

Thomas pitched for the Flyers and O. Luttrell for the Xenians. Double plays during the contest, nipping promising rallies.

The Flyers hope to avenge an earlier 4 to 1 defeat when they met a Jamestown team in a return contest at Mt. Tabor, Monday night. Score by innings:

Xenia: 1 3 0 0 0 0 2 0 6
Mt. Tabor: 1 0 1 0 1 0 0 3 6

Batteries: Xenia—O. Luttrell and Loyd; Mt. Tabor—Thomas and Ford.

BATTALINO GAME BUT LOSES VERDICT

CHICAGO, May 21.—Billy Petrolle can whip Christopher (Bat) Battalino, but he can't make him quit.

At the end of ten rounds of one of the bloodiest, most ferocious battles ever staged in the Chicago Stadium, Petrolle, Duluth, Minn., junior welterweight, was awarded the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges, duplicating his victory of two months ago in Madison Square Garden. Each weighed 140.

Battalino, cut in four places about the face and head, his nose bashed in, his eyes swollen and his face smeared with blood, was out-fighting the unmarked but tired Petrolle at the finish. From start to finish Battalino kept walking into Petrolle, taking his best hooks, jabs and crosses, without wavering.

THE BIG FIVE

Babe Ruth singled, accounting for three runs, in four times at bat. Lou Gehrig singled in four times. Al Simmons doubled and singled, accounting for three runs, in four times at bat. Hack Wilson homered and singled twice, accounting for three runs, in four times at bat. Bill Terry tripled, accounting for two runs, in five tries.

QUALIFY FOR SPEED TRIALS BY RUNNING BASES IN SOFTBALL

Champs Score Ten Runs
To Defeat Spring
Valley

Possibly in training for the coming tenth Olympic games, track stars of the champion Lang Chevrolet softball squad indulged in a brisk work-out on the Cox Athletic Field diamond Friday night, the athletes showing great bursts of speed in trials in the dash events.

A greater part of the time was devoted to running the bases, the Chevrolet team collecting fifteen hits of various dimensions in registering a 10 to 0 shutout victory over Spring Valley in a National League contest.

Harry Williams, Lang hurler, envious of the pitching exploits of Lloyd Downey, turned back the Valley team with only three hits and nary a run, marking the second straight game in the National League this week in which the losing team was blanked.

Four home runs enlivened the Lang batting exhibition. Fred Lang twice hit for the circuit with the bases empty each time, once in the fourth and again in the eighth, and he also rapped out a single.

"Happy" Davis hit for all the bases in the eighth. "Bulldog" Smith lined out a triple to the right field fence in the fifth and was out down at the plate trying to stretch it into a homer. In the seventh he duplicated his former long hit and this time completed the circuit.

The city champions started slowly, but after scoring their first run in the third, they tallied one or more runs in every inning thereafter.

The first Spring Valley hit came in the fourth with one out when Montgomery tripled along the right field foul line. Noggle was safe at first on an error by Davis, the only Lang misplay of the game, but when Montgomery tried to score from third on the play he was nipped at the plate.

Spring Valley bunched its other two hits in the eighth but the runners were left on the paths. Blair, pitching for the Valley, was hit harder than in any previous games this season and his support was not of the best.

Glen Patterson, Lang short fielder, furnished the fielding sensation with a spectacular one-handed catch, a difficult fly from Ben Elston in the sixth. In the last of the sixth, Stevens, Valley left fielder, also made a great running catch to rob Davis of an apparent extra base hit.

The victory, the third straight for Langs, boosted the champions into a tie with the Xenia Chick Hatchery for the league leadership. It was the Valley team's fourth straight defeat.

RESCUE PLANE BRAVES ALASKAN GLACIERS TO FIND CARPE'S PARTY

FAIRBANKS, May 21.—A rescue plane winged swiftly over the ice-capped Alaskan mountains today to the relief of two scientists and an aviator marooned on North America's highest peak.

Pilot Jerry Jones who located the men on crevasse-pitted Muldrow Glacier yesterday, was making a return flight to Mt. McKinley. He carried a new axle for the plane of Pilot S. E. Robbins who damaged his ship in landing on the rough icefield after finding Nicholas Spadeveckia and Percy T. Olton, Jr., two of three survivors of a scientific party of five.

Jones, flying a nine passenger plane, reported it probably would be inadvisable for him to land his heavy craft on the soft, shifting surface of the glacier.

He planned to drop the axle and supplies by parachute. It was expected Robbins would be able to repair his light plane and take off with at least one of the two men, making two trips if necessary.

If this plan failed, Jones said he would drop instructions to the two advising them to start overland for the nearest ranger's emergency station where mountain guides await them. Jones said he would fly overhead as the men struggled slowly across the broken ice to guide their way.

Spadeveckia had been missing since he set out ten days ago to bring aid to the expedition which lost two men in crevasses and was stricken by disease.

The rescue of the two scientists today rounded itself into an epic of northland flying. The party headed by Allen Carpe of Xenia, O., set out late in April intent upon studying phenomena of the cosmic ray from the isolated mountain height.

Carpe and a companion, Theodore Koven, perished when they toppled into icy crevasses. After this disaster Spadeveckia set out to bring aid to E. P. Beckwith, member of the party who was ill.

By W. K. (JERRY) JONES
Written for The United Press
FAIRBANKS, Alaska, May 21.—I searched the whole area from Mt. Elselson to upper Muldrow Glacier before I sighted Pilot Robbins' plane on the glacier at a point some 6,000 feet above sea level.

I circled and three men on snow shoes came from a base tent on the mountain side off glacier about a half mile from the plane. I knew at once that Robbins and Olton had located Spadeveckia and it was a thrill to know he was alive.

"I dropped a parachute to which was attached a can of lampblack. Robbins opened the can and wrote 'O—S—Hare. Left axle broke.' I had six five-gallon cans of gasoline aboard, and dropped one to test the snow. It was several feet deep but the can burst when it landed on the glacier ice. Robbins had made a good landing Thursday but broke an axle when his ski struck a hidden crevasse.

The plane was undamaged otherwise. I circled while writing a note that I would return to Fairbanks for a ski equipped plane and come back for them.

They waved "O. K." I then flew up the glacier looking for bodies of Allen Carpe and Theodore Koven but down-drafts at 10,000 feet forced me to turn back and proceed to Fairbanks for another plane, a new axle and tools to repair Robbins' plane and bring them off the glacier to Fairbanks.

ATTORNEY NAMED TO STOP PROSECUTION ON HOAX COMPLAINT

banker and friend of Curtis; Miss Gay, a stenographer have been questioned concerning several points in the confession Curtis signed.

Bruce could not conceive that the plot executed by Curtis was the product of a "normal mind." "There was no mercenary motive, I am sure," he said.

This is the theory held in Norfolk, referring to one point in Curtis' confession in which he said he was moved to fabricate his story by the hope of huge payments by newspapers, news services, magazines, and book publishers.

None but the Lindberghs knew of the negotiations for the first two or three weeks. And all offers of payment for "inside stories" of what Curtis did were dependant upon delivery of the child, something Curtis knew was an impossibility if his complete confession was the whole truth.

A complete belief in Dean Dobson-Peacock and others in the supposed negotiations acted in good faith, Bruce said.

Dr. Condon told his story of the payment of $50,000 to supposed kidnapers during the Bronx County grand jury session yesterday. He looked at more roguish gallery pictures, and it was expected that he would check still more pictures in New Jersey this week end.

IT'S ELBOWS VS. WRISTS WHEN DUFFER SWINGS SAYS ALEX

Editor's Note: This is No. 21 of a series of golf lessons by Alex Morrison, golf's star teacher. These lessons appear in The Gazette's sport page each Wednesday and Saturday. Watch for the next.

By ALEX J. MORRISON
Golf's Foremost Technician
Written Exclusively for Central Press and The Gazette

Wrists, elbows, shoulders are, of course, numbered among the principal joints in the human frame.

Anyone past the age of infancy can point them out with their eyes shut. That is, anyone but the average golfer. He seems to have them pretty badly confused. He forgets which is which the moment he grips a golf club and then the trouble begins.

Let's take the case of elbows versus wrists. During business hours, Mr. Over A. Hundred flicks the ashes from his cigar with no more than an easy movement of his little finger. He knows it would be ridiculous to bring his elbow or shoulder joints into the simple action of his little finger.

But on the golf course Mr. Over A. Hundred has been trying for years to bring about even a fair amount of wrist action in his swing. Why has he failed? Simply because he has allowed elbow or shoulder action to be substituted for wrist action.

Unless his wrists are strapped in splints there is no reason why he can't use them just as freely as his friend, the good golfer. In order to do so, however, he must overcome his present confusion over wrist, elbow and shoulder joints.

One method of doing this is to keep the hands in their original position on the club throughout the entire swing. As an aid toward this end you should press the hands together where they rest against one another. Press the heel of your right hand against the thumb of your left hand as though you were holding a small coin in that spot. This procedure will help to bring about the proper wrist as well as elbow action.

Next—Vital Stages of Swing.

CONGRESSMEN VIOLATE STATE LAWS BY EMPLOYING RELATIVES

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Dozens of congressmen and some senators are going contrary to the spirit of laws in their respective states forbidding the employment of relatives.

They are able to do this legally because senators and congressmen have been held to be federal, not state officers. Congress has not only ignored anti-nepotism bills which have been occasionally introduced, but more than half of the members carry wives, children, "in-laws" and other relatives on the payrolls as secretaries and clerks.

The extent of this practice may be disclosed more fully with adoption of the Warren resolution to open up the house payrolls to public inspection. Rep. Warren, Democrat, North Carolina, planned to call up his resolution in the house today. Speaker Garner and both the house leaders of both parties have endorsed it.

Congress years ago passed laws governing the civil service employees of the executive departments which provide that not more than two members of the same family may be carried on the civil service rolls. Yet not only Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, but some other well-known senators who may be named later have more than one relative on the rolls, making three of the family altogether—as do many congressmen.

Missouri has an anti-nepotism provision in the state constitution, yet one of Missouri's senators, Paterson, Republican, and nine of the sixteen representatives have or have had within the last year members of their family on the payroll.

Idaho has an anti-nepotism law, passed in 1929, but Senator John Thomas, Republican, until some months ago had first his daughter and then his sister on the payroll, the latter being an assistant bank cashier in the senator's bank.

Utah passed a law against employment of relatives a year ago but the entire Utah delegation in congress, excepting Senator Smoot, Republican, have relatives on the rolls, or at least until a few days ago. Senator Smoot also was in this group until some months ago.

Mississippi passed an anti-nepotism law in 1926, yet some members of the Mississippi delegation have relatives on the rolls.

Nevada is another anti-nepotism state. Her one congressman, Samuel Arentz, carried both his wife and young son on the rolls at one time—the wife as a clerk and son as a page.

The pending bill of Rep. J. R. Mitchell, Democrat, Tennessee, to stop the practice has been given the thumbs down sign. The leaders have come around to permitting the public to see who they are appointing to the government payroll.

They regard that as a great forward step, and one of those at a time is about all the traffic can bear in the house.

Helen Hayes' Charms In Farewell To Arms

Helen Hayes, star of Broadway and the screen, has been signed by Paramount to play the feminine lead in "A Farewell to Arms," Ernest Hemingway's startling novel of a war-time romance.

Miss Hayes scored a personal triumph in "The Sin of Madelon laudet" and followed up with a sensitive and beautiful performance opposite Ronald Colman in "Arrowsmith." Her promised appearance in the Hemingway opus immediately gives this film added significance.

Miss Hayes will play the English nurse while Frederic March will be the soldier and John Cromwell will direct. Claudette Colbert was supposed to be in this picture but the studio changed its mind.

All studios are lending players freely these days. Warren William, whom Warners has kept busy of late, will be loaned to Metro to Carl Laemmle has been promised the script September 1.

RKO is to release synchronized versions of some of the old comedies Charlie Chaplin made for Pathe.

Barber Bugs Visited Oregon BEND, Ore.—This city was recently beset by an invasion of millions of "barber bugs," a species of beetle that can clip a hair in two with razor-like mandibles. An uncomfortable day was spent by residents, until the wind shifted.

Will Rogers

As funny (and as wise) as he looks.

lay the lead in "Skyscraper Souls." Rose Hobart and Gregory LaRocca are two other outside players who may get important parts in this film. Edgar Selwyn, former Broadway producer, will direct his film which is an up-to-the-minute story of the "Grand Hotel" type.

Way back in the silent days, Will Rogers played a whistling ramp in a picture called "Jubilo," which you may remember. Now here is an excellent chance that he'll do this story again as his next "talkie."

The political comedy, "If I Were President," seems to be off the list. Rumor says Will didn't like the idea of poking fun at the nation's chief executive—not in celluloid, anyway. It was ten years ago when he made "Jubilo" for the Samuel Goldwyn Co. Clarence Ladger directed and Jossie Sedgwick, whereabouts now unknown, played the feminine lead. Will is cast finishing "Down to Earth" and will cover the conventions so nothing more will be done for a while.

Until further notice, Thelma Todd will be acting before the cameras at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer here she's been signed to play the siren in Buster Keaton's and Immy Durante's new comedy, "Speak Easily," in which Ruth Selwyn will play the heroine. The film is the Saturday Evening Post serial, "Footlights," by Clarence Buddington Kelland.

Universal has bought a story right unseen from Ward Morehouse, New York columnist. In fact he hasn't ever written it, but

HERE IS FACSIMILE OF CONFESSION BY CURTIS

Statement of John Hughes Curtis 702 Redgate Avenue, Norfolk, Va.

Made by my own hand and own free will.

Referring to the two statements made previously by me in regards to the Linbergh Case

At the present time I am sane, but I honestly believe that for the last seven or eight months I have not been myself, due to financial troubles.

I was apparently brought back to my senses by my telephone conversation with my wife this afternoon when she told me of the troubles she was having and how the children missed me, also by my conversation with Inspector Harry W. Walsh.

I desire to state that my remarks about the newspapers are true and can be verified, this is in reference to my story about Mr. Haskell and Mr. Willcox of the Herald Tribune, Mr. Lee of the News and Mr. Turin and Fox, offering me money of my knowledge of the Linbergh Case or pictures of the baby.

The matter was brought to my attention during a conversation and due to what I now believe was a distorted mind by brooding over it, I became insane on the subject for the time being, which caused me to create the story in its entirety, which were untrue in every respect.

I never knew such people that I named to Colonel Linbergh and they were creatures of a distorted mind, with the exception of Morris Truesdale, who had no connection with the crime.

I exceedingly regret that I caused Colonel Linbergh and others any inconvenience and wish it were in my power to correct my wrong.

In justice to my wife and two children I trust that it is in the power of Colonel Linbergh to forgive the inconvenience, worry and injustice I did him in his time of grief.

This statement has been brought about by the realization of the wrong I have done.

The Rt. Rev. Reverdy C. Ransom of New York, recently assigned as the presiding bishop over the Third Episcopal District of the A. M. E. Church, visited the school for a few hours Thursday morning. He attended the chapel exercises and was given a hearty welcome by President G. H. Jones, the members of the general faculty and student body. The distinguished visitor gave an interesting talk on educational affairs and declared that Wilberforce University is not a "Plenic College," where students come to have a good time for ten months in the year and then return to their respective homes for a rest. He vividly brought to their attention the needs of educated citizens, and said the time is now at hand when the avenues leading to business are crowded with men and women fresh from the leading schools of the country. The boy and girl who went out half prepared could not expect to compete with those who were prepared for the job, he said. Bishop Ransom has announced his intention of making Wilberforce his Episcopal residence.
